for a divorce on the ground of cruel treatment. The story is a long one, but its leading features may be stated in a few words. At the early age of nighteen she was asked to become the wife of Hampton, but refused, as he then had a wife and family. All the leaders of the church, sided by Hampton's wife, used their persuasions with the girl, telling her that it for the side of the sid church, aided by Hampton's wife, used their It was the religious argument that finally brought her to terms, and den Brigham Young himself brought his influence to bear upon her. But while she yielded she was not convinced, and when she left the "endow house," where the marriage ceremony was performed, she felt that she had done wrong and wept bitterly on her way to what was to be her

To this the man entered upon less married life -a victim of religious superstitution and downright ly-ing. One of hos that discoveries was that her husband was a Dauile, or a member of the special police of the Mornion church, whose business it was to put apostates and other trouble some persons out of lutim's way. This discovery was made by overhearing a conversation be-tween her husband and some other Danites, in her own house, in which they coolly planned the murder of three men for apostatizing from the church. One of these rues she knew personally, and she saved their lives by revealing

The "marriage" took place in 1863, and after seven years Hampton described her. For him: Will keep a Large Assortment of Goods to years she has had to struggld for her own sup-port and that of her two children, and now seeks an absolute divorce. Her whole life his been one of unrequited foil, neglect and sufferhistoria. There years often marriage, a thirdwife was not reduced, and at this time she had to ease for the first whe's all this & by ha minuter. She was asked to surrender to the third wife the house in which she lived and that helped to earn, and because the rainsed to do this he stripped it of nearly all the furniture and hedding and refused to supply live with and hedding and consect to supply her with a set resolution to set equal set the drawn of many from the control of the sext step was to kidnap her child produce
